THOMAS N. GILMARTIN JOINS TRISTATE CAPITAL BANK AS REGIONAL PRESIDENT

Gilmartin to Lead New York City Market

New York, NY — Aug. 24, 2012 — TriState Capital Bank (TriState Capital) announced today the hiring of Thomas N. Gilmartin, who will serve as regional president of the company's New York City Market.

With more than 28 years of middle-market and large corporate banking experience, Gilmartin will be headquartered at TriState Capital's New York City representative office located at 623 Fifth Avenue, where he will build a team of seasoned financial relationship managers. Gilmartin's hiring reinforces TriState Capital's mission to provide senior banking advisors to businesses and executives.

"Tom is a team builder with deep credit experience and a successful track record of building middle market portfolios in New York City and the surrounding markets. His management skills and attention to clients will be a real asset to our bank," said Bill Schenck, president of TriState Capital.

Most recently Gilmartin served as Executive Vice President/Chief Lending Officer at a New York based bank where he was responsible for the commercial banking efforts including business development, portfolio management and credit quality of bank assets.

Prior to that, Gilmartin served as Regional Vice President/Senior Lending Officer with a large regional bank. While there, he was charged with driving the success of both the commercial banking and retail banking platforms in his market and because of his success, was part of the bank's Executive Leadership Team in New York.

"I look forward to the challenge of helping TriState Capital Bank build on its expertise in delivering unparalleled service to middle market businesses and their key executives and to expand this growing franchise," said Gilmartin. "I was most impressed with TriState Capital Bank's business model, culture and leadership team, which will support the high level of personalized service our clients have come to expect."
