James R. (Jim) Hendricks, Jr. serves as a relationship manager for Deposits and Treasury Management in both Pittsburgh and Cleveland markets for TriState Capital Bank.

Jim has more than 15 years of experience in sales and operational banking. He is well versed in developing business relationships, sales management, and financial productivity for treasury management services.

Prior to joining the TriState Capital treasury sales team, Jim served as an operational expert for deposit operations or treasury management support. He spent several years developing products and services for the current client base. Also, he was a primary contact to the commercial relationships and provided day to day support for problem resolution.

Over the course of his career, Jim worked for several large financial institutions in various roles with a focus on treasury management and depository services.

Jim holds a B.S.B.A from Slippery Rock University. He is also a member of local and national (AFP) Association for Financial Professionals.
