Matthew Fisher serves as Senior Vice President, Treasury & Liquidity Manager. As part of the Bank's Treasury Management group, Matthew is responsible for increasing market visibility, generating new business opportunities and driving revenues.

Prior to joining TriState Capital, Matthew spent 17 years in the financial space, and most recently with a large financial institution in the banking sector, where he held the title of Vice President/Treasury Management Officer.

Matthew began his banking career focusing on Branch Management before moving into the Treasury Management, where he has been for the last 7 years. Matthew has become a seasoned SVP and Treasury/Liquidity Manager, with excellent skills in developing new business opportunities while maintaining a portfolio of existing relationships. He is also an expert in the four core pillars of managing cash; speeding up receivables, slowing down payables, managing excess cash and leveraging financial technology to help businesses operate efficiently and predictably.

Matthew is a member of local and national (AFP) Association for Financial Professionals and also holds a board position, as Treasurer, for a local Not For Profit.
